Greetings,

As the holy month of Ramadan ends, I am pleased to wish Muslims in Massachusetts and across America and the world a joyous Eid al-Fitr.

These unprecedented times have made the observance of Ramadan especially challenging, as COVID-19 has caused many communities to remain physically distant from family and friends who help make this holy month special. Despite the challenges posed by this virus, I am inspired by the generous efforts of Muslim Americans to combat food insecurity and address the needs of health care workers around the country. This spirit of charitable giving reminds us that no one should be left behind, especially the poor and the marginalized in our society.

Eid Mubarak to all Muslims celebrating, and may this sacred time strengthen our shared commitment to the dignity and humanity of all.

Sincerely,
